

Building on the earlier work of Government Spending Watch, Save the Children have commissioned DFI to write their flagship Child Rights Governance Initiative report on what governments worldwide are Investing in Children, and how to increase the quantity, equity, impact and accountability of this investment. The work involves constructing the first ever multi-country Index of Investment in Children tracking spending on education, health and child-oriented social protection, as well as six case studies of Mozambique, Nepal, Nicaragua, South Africa, Spain and Uganda. The report will be launched globally in the second half of 2014.
